Canarvon teen killed in shooting

by Carol Moffatt

A 17-year-old Canarvon teen is dead after she was shot in the back by her father at a local restaurant Thursday night.

Sandy Bannon, a Haliburton high school student, and 41-year-old Renee Hubercheck, owner of the Mill Pond Restaurant, were shot as they fled the building to the parking lot just before 9 p.m.

Witnesses say 42-year-old Ken Bannon went into the kitchen through the back door of the Hwy. 35 restaurant armed with a hunting rifle.

Bannon's estranged wife Gloria and Hubercheck's daughter Cassandra were working at the restaurant at the time of the incident but neither was injured.

Police say when Bannon entered the kitchen, Gloria told Sandy and 16-year-old Cynthia Hubercheck to get out, shouting, "He's got a gun" and the two girls fled to the basement to escape from the building.

Renee Hubercheck was shot in the chest and was airlifted to Toronto where she was reported in serious but stable condition at press time.

Sandy was transferred from Minden to Lindsay where she died from a severed artery in her lower abdomen, said Minden OPP spokesman Mike Maybee.

Witnesses said a third shot was fired at 16-year-old Cynthia Hubercheck as she and Sandy fled the building. She was not injured.

Those who knew Bannon said it's unlikely Gloria or Sandy were targets of the unexplained attack, but said Bannon had been angry with the Hubercheck family, especially Renee, because he felt they were a big part of his marital problems.

Both Gloria and Sandy lived with the Huberchecks in their home beneath the restaurant.

Renee was shot by Bannon while she was standing in the kitchen, but got up and went outside where she collapsed in the parking lot.

Memorial fund established

A memorial fund in the name of slain teenager Sandy Bannon has been established to finance the installation of a 24 hour heliport in Minden. The fund was established by Canarvon area residents a day after the 17 year old was shot outside a restaurant in the hamlet.

Ed Turner, who, along with his wife Lee, is spear-heading the drive, said the fund will be used to install a night use helicopter landing pad at the Minden Hospital. At the moment the hospital has facilities for evacuating patients by helicopter during the day, but lacks the necessary lights and beacons for landings after dark.

Both Sandy Bannon and the owner of the restaurant, Renee Hubercheck, who was wounded in the incident, were taken to Minden Hospital. Sandy was transferred by ground ambulance to Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay, where she died a short time later. Renee Hubercheck was flown by helicopter from the Haliburton Hospital to Sunnybrook Hospital in Toronto. The Haliburton Hospital has the necessary equipment to allow night landings.

The committee formed quickly Saturday morning as word went out that a fund would be started. Before the day was out, donation boxes had been placed in 35 businesses in the county, arrangements had been made to establish an account at the Minden branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and work was underway to press for the installation of the heliport.

The response from the public was equally swift. The box placed in Foster's General Store, the business owned by Ed and Lee Turner, was full just ten hours after it was placed on the counter.

The committee has made arrangements for memorial donation to be accepted through the Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home in Minden or at the CIBC, as well as through the boxes.

"Our aim," Ed Turner explained, "is to get enough money to establish a night heliport at the Minden Hospital, so that emergency cases such as those of this past week can be evacuated quickly to other hospitals." He said if it was impossible to have the helicopter facility built at the hospital, the committee would like to see the municipality or a privately-run one built. Turner noted there are other services in the area which use helicopters for a variety of purposes, including Ontario Hydro, Ministry

Gambell running for reeve

Ron Gambell, the former reeve of Lutterworth Township, has announced his intention to run for the position of reeve in Anson, Hindon and Minden. Gambell threw his hat into the election ring last week.

Gambell is running with a long-term view in mind. "I want to serve for two terms," he declared during an interview with The Times. "I feel it will take that long to re-establish a sense of harmony and understanding between the council and the business community." He said he felt the relationship between the two had deteriorated and that it was time to re-establish co-operative contacts between the two.

"I feel the economy is going to rebound in 1993-94. I want this township to be in a position to take advantage of the surge in growth." He said in the past problems have been created between the council and the business community through lack of communications and a lack of understanding of business needs. "As a businessman in the community, I hope to re-establish those links and working with the business community, see our townships grow."

Gambell also pledged to Success of recycling causing problems at dumps

The effort to encourage local property owners to recycle appears to have been too successful. That was message township representative on the county waste reduction committee, Bernie Davis, brought to the September 24 meeting of Anson, Hindon and Minden Council.

The Bat Lake resident, who is taking a year off from her teaching responsibilities at Archie Stouffer Elementary School to take courses in environmental studies at Trent University, told the meeting that more than a few times this past summer the recycling bins at the Minden dump were closed or full to overflowing. She said there has been an over-whelming response to the call for people to recycle, but the enthusiasm has severely taxed the ability of the collection system to handle the flow of material.

She noted that even with the addition of a second dumpster at the Scotch Line landfill site, the amount of material still spills out of the containers, littering the area around them. "I'm not sure what the solution to the problem is, I'm just here to advise you of the problem," she told the councillors.

Municipal services supervisor Clayton Cameron said the township was equally surprised by the influx of the material. He said when the dumpsters were first installed last February it took four to five weeks before they filled up. As people became aware they could recycle some of their garbage, the bins were filling weekly and at mid summer it took only four days for an empty bin to be brimming with recyclable material.

Cameron told the council that the township pays $140 each time one of the containers is removed and $150 per month for the rental of the bins. He said now that summer has passed, and the township has introduced a card system for access to the dump, he expects the amount of recycled material to drop off.

Muskoka Containerized Services (MCS) of Bracebridge provides the recycling bins. The material is processed by the non-profit organization Muskoka Recycling Services. Councillor Vern Graham told the meeting the organizing which is processing the material is already stretched to capacity and indicated the township was fortunate they agreed to accept our recycled material.

A letter from MCS was read to the council which stated they were aware of the problems of the overflowing bins, but that they had been caught short by the volume of material.

While the increased use of the recycling bins points to an encouraging trend in that people are becoming aware of the need to recycle, Davis pointed out recycling is the last of the three 'R's in the environmental equation. She said people need to be encouraged to reduce the amount of garbage they generate and re-use as much as possible. Cameron added that several magazine articles he had read indicated the cost, in money and energy, of handling recycled material can exceed the cost of working with virgin material.

The township is also faced with a MOE guideline to reduce material deposited at the dump by 25% in the coming year. Reeve Bern Berry said the introduction of the card access system should help in that regard, but that the public also has to be educated to reduce and re-use.

Concern was also expressed about the contamination of the recycling bins. "People must be made aware that dumping ceramic items, for example, in the glass bin will make the entire lot unusable," Davis said. "It defeats the whole purpose of the recycling centre and adds to our landfill crisis because the

be a "hands-off" head of council as far as the municipal staff is concerned. "I want to be elected as reeve, not to serve as clerk, road superintendent, by-law enforcement officer, or whatever. The township hires professionals who know what they are doing. They should be left to get the job done." He also pointed out since he runs his own business, he will not have the time to be "looking over everyone's shoulders" all the time. "The council should provide direction," he said. "The council's job is to delegate."

Gambell said he has been extremely encouraged by the response of the public to his candidacy.

The candidate said he is looking forward to the challenges of County Council, if he is elected. He said his past experience will be a valuable asset on a council that is expected to see many new faces. "I feel I can pick up where I left off in 1985," when he stepped down as reeve in Lutterworth Township.

While on County Council, Gambell served on the Hyland Crest board of management, was the county representative to the Chamber of Commerce, and served on the roads committee and was the first chairman of the county personnel committee.

Reviewing his other activities as an elected official, Gambell said he, along with Stanhope Reeve Jim Harrison and Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Sinc Nesbitt, was instrumental in the creation of Staanworth Non-profit Housing Corporation, the body responsible for seniors apartments and geared to income housing units in Minden.

His past experience on Lutterworth Council includes a term as councillor in 1976, deputy reeve 1977-78, and reeve from 1979 to 1985. He served as Haliburton County Warden in 1982.

"I want to serve all the ratepayers of the municipality," Gambell said. "I came here as a cottager many years ago and have made the Highlands my home. I feel I understand the concerns of all members of our community." The candidate said, "If elected, my door will be open to all ratepayers. I will represent everyone."

Council grills planner

An attempt by county planner Mark Stagg to obtain comments from Anson, Hindon and Minden councillors on the County Official Plan resulted in a critical examination of the process rather than any fresh ideas on what the plan should contain.

Stagg appeared before the Thursday night meeting of the council saying he was looking for their input and ideas on the progress report of the planning process. The document, issued September 20, provided a summary of the comments received from the public through a questionnaire circulated at public meetings and the mail. The county committee examining the planning process has received 73 replies so far. "I would like to give the members of the council an opportunity to provide me with their vision of the county 10 or 20 years from now," he said. "I am here to listen to your thoughts."

Councillor Vern Graham led off the discussion by saying the planner had not given the councillors time to research the plan. "It is unjust and unfair for you to be asking us these questions on such short notice," he commented.

Reeve Bern Berry said he was dismayed that only 73 questionnaires had been returned to the county.

Graham added to those concerns saying he felt the committee was taking a chance if it was relying on such meagre number of returns in drafting its report. "I am shocked," he commented. "73 questionnaires represent only 4% of those handed out. I expect this will lead to a biased report."

Graham also complained that some of the questions were nothing more than "motherhood issues", others concerned matters that were the responsibility of the province and that left little else for the public or the council to effectively comment on.

Stagg said the summary of the returns represented just initial ideas and it was produced to provide a basis for discussion.

Councillor Mike Maher said he vision for the county included each municipality having its own official plan which would then be co-ordinated with the county planning process.

Councillor Graham added the Anson, Hindon and Minden plan was due to be updated, since it has been five years since it was last looked at. He said until that is done, and the municipality knew where its own planning priorities stood, it would be difficult to pass judgement on the county efforts. He also repeated the sentiment that each township should have its own planning document before the county attempts to impose one from that level.

Councillor Bob Sisson said the municipality was in fact paying twice for the planning process, once at the local level and again at the county level.

Councillor Maher also said he was concerned the county official plan would create another hurdle for developers to over-come in getting projects completed.

Councillor Lewis Stevens added the township would need to finish its own official plan update before it could provide any worthwhile input into the county effort.

Stagg said while the planning committee will continue to meet, major decision are not expected in the near future because of the impending election. He thanked the council for its frank appraisal of the efforts of the planning process.

Council says recycling will be closely watched material which is contaminated is simply buried."

The councillors also discussed the idea of establishing a recycled material handling facility here. There was some question as to whether there was sufficient quantity generated in the county to warrant such a facility. However, concern was also expressed over how long the Muskoka Recycling Association would be willing to accept material from this county, especially if they are hard pressed to handle the material generated in their own community.

Councillor Graham asked when the county is going to take over responsibility for the dumps in the Highlands. He noted a similar program in Victoria County has resulted in a more coordinated approach to the handling of garbage.

The councillors agreed to carry on with the recycling effort along with more careful monitoring of the capacity of the bins. Davis and Reeve Berry also offered to keep the council up to date on the progress of the county waste management committee.

Stevens hopes to move from councillor to deputy-reeve

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

By running for the position of deputy-reeve in the upcoming elections, Minden Councillor Lewis Stevens says he is looking for a "promotion" from voters.

"In business, if you think you're doing a reasonable job, you look for a promotion," Stevens said in an interview last week. "I think I've done a reasonable job, so I'm asking the taxpayers for a promotion."

Stevens has developed a platform which touches on many of the major issues facing the municipality and the county.

Among his positions is a strong endorsement of the Taxpayer's Coalition of Haliburton County and the need for budget restraint.

He says the coalition will keep fiscal responsibility at the top of council's agenda and will be a constant reminder of taxpayers' concerns.

"I whole-heartedly support this movement and will pledge my support in both my thinking and actions in the coming years," he said.

In previous years, Stevens says budgets were based on the amount of subsidy available from senior governments, an attitude which must change.

"Economic conditions dictate priority expenditures only, through necessity rather than personal ambitions," he says. "We seem to be able to do little about the foolhardy spending of our upper levels of government outside our county, but we can say 'No' to in our own area."

Recorded votes on financial resolutions, zero increase budgets and support from taxpayers must become the normal procedure for local councils, says Stevens.

Another issue which Stevens feels strongly about is the area of economic development. While the county is doing a good job of promoting the county as a tourism destination and a retirement community for seniors, Stevens says there is a lack of diversified employment opportunities.

"Unfortunately, the downfall in our economic development is that we can not fulfill the needs of our young adults." He says a lack of secure employment opportunities is forcing young people to move out of the county.

While the county's economic problems have been repeatedly studied over the years, Stevens says there is still no solution.

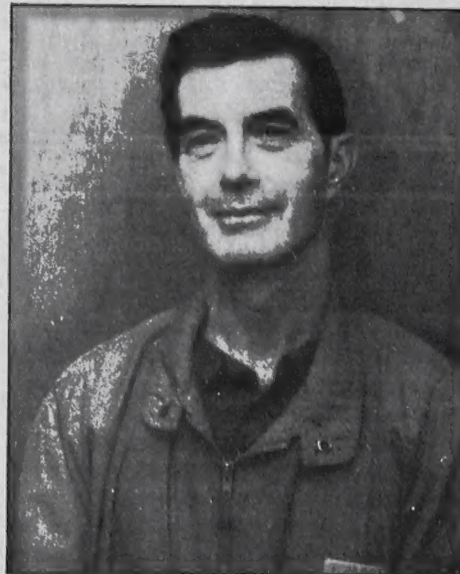

As a related issue, Stevens is critical of the direction taken by the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce in recent years.

He says the chamber concentrates on promoting rental accommodation in the county, and does little to help downtown businesses.

"It's supposed to be a chamber of commerce, not a tourist association," he says. "There are a lot of areas the chamber is not attacking. Whatever mandate they've been following, it can't be right. They've had severe problems for many years."

While identifying the chamber as a necessary component in promoting the county, Stevens says it must be reformed. "The same type of policies seem to be promoted by the same type of directors. This is obviously the wrong format promoted by the wrong people," he said. "Let's bring it back down to reality and to the needs of the membership and get rid of that which does not work."

Stevens also wants to see changes in the way the county planning department is being run. He believes that county planner Mark Stagg should spend more time helping municipalities with their planning concerns.

"It seems like for decades his office has been assembling the backup material necessary to do the job," he said. "Let's get him out of his office and into the field. We need the guidance and the interpretation that he is qualified to supply."

Lewis says Stagg lacks credibility with municipal councillors and the planner should prove himself.

"Once we accept him as the professional he is, and he proves that, through actual working experiences, he can provide the services necessary for our area, then we can look to the county official plan and its implications with a better understanding between both of us."

He suggests that Stagg should be doing the work currently performed by outside consultants. Because the costs of these services are borne by developers, Stevens says it should not involve a cost to the taxpayer.

Other issues addressed by Stevens include; the environment - which he says should override all other concerns; community policing - an initiative he says must be given a chance to work and will require educating both the police and the public; and market value assessment - which he says must be studied to ensure a fair system for all taxpayers is adopted.

Stevens was first elected to council in 1988 and says he has been a member of "almost every committee going." He says he has always voted according to his conscience and listens to all sides of an issue before making a decision.

"If I can't leave the chamber and feel what I did was right, then I wouldn't continue on."

away from the restaurant. After she was shot, she managed to get to a telephone and call boyfriend, 19-year-old Greg Turner, at home, saying she'd been hurt by her father and was bleeding.

When Turner and his father went to Bannon's Beech River home looking for Sandy, they found the television and several lights on, but no sign of Sandy.

Turner said that as he left the house Bannon drove into the driveway, stared at him for a moment and quickly reversed and drove away.

Bannon's body was found on North Shore dump road a short time later. He died of a self-inflicted gun shot wound in the head and a 30-30 rifle was found at the scene.

Before the shootings, Bannon seemed to putting his life back together after recently losing his job and having difficulty dealing with last year's separation from his wife.

"He bought a new car and he'd just bought a bunch of paint to re-do the kitchen," said 25-year-old Dan Stiver, a close friend of the Hubercheck family and of Sandy.

"He changed after the separation. Before that he'd do anything for you. But things seemed to be looking up for him lately," said Stiver, adding that Bannon was looking forward to a job interview in Barrie on Saturday.

"He was pretty bitter during the separation.

Whenever he talked to Sandy he always asked where her mom was," said 17-year-old Aaron Turner, Greg Turner's brother and a friend of the Huberchecks.

Turner also said Bannon had inexplicably told his daughter he didn't love her anymore on a couple of occasions and that father and daughter had been growing apart recently.

Karen Thomas, a former neighbour and family friend of the Bannon's, said Bannon was a good man who wasn't abusive.

She said Bannon, a hunting buddy of her father Allan's, always had a smile on his face and was at the Thomas home just hours before the shooting occurred.

"Something clicked. I don't know what but Kenny wouldn't do something like that. He was a strong man and he's been through a rough patch; things were looking up for him," she said.

Sandy's friends described her as fun-loving, outgoing and adventurous.

"She was a real spark, not a silly girl," said Mary Stiver.

"She was ten years ahead of herself - very mature," said Dan.

Sandy was an above average student who expected to graduate from high school this year, having been working toward her OAC credits in the last year or so, said Stiver.

Police officers from the OPP detachment in Minden sealed off the Mill Pond Restaurant after a fatal shooting left two people dead and another wounded.

Hubercheck recovering in Toronto

Although she remains in the Sunnybrook Hospital's intensive care unit, Renee Hubercheck is in stable condition and appears to be on the long road to recovery. That was the word from Tom her husband, when he spoke to The Times this weekend.

"She has had a good night's sleep and that seems to have helped her strength," Tom said.

Renee was wounded in a shooting at the couple's restaurant in Canarvon Thursday evening and was transferred by helicopter to the Toronto facility in serious condition.

According to Tom, the hospital has been flooded with calls from friends in Haliburton County inquiring about her condition and to pass on their wishes for a speedy recovery. He said that while the out-pouring of concern is greatly appreciated, the volume of calls has created a problem at the nursing station and he has asked friends not to call the hospital. "Both Renee and I are most grateful for the love and concern expressed by the many callers, but I must request people not call," Tom said.

He also noted that while Renee is in the intensive care unit, she is unable to have any visitors and also requested that people not drop by the hospital for the next little while until her condition improves.

"Tell everyone we appreciate their concern," Tom concluded.

Friends hope to establish helipad

of Natural Resources, the Ontario Provincial Police, among others. "A public facility could provide refueling services and be available to these other agencies."

The committee has the full backing of Dr. Holliday-Rhodes, one of a number of physicians in Minden. He said the construction of a night heliport at the hospital would help reduce delays in transferring emergency patients to larger facilities in southern Ontario. He noted that using the Haliburton Hospital heliport results in additional delays, which sometimes can be crucial to a patient's survival.

A strong endorsement for the facility has also come from Doug Campbell, Minden's representative on the St. Joseph's Hospital Board. Both the Minden and Haliburton hospitals are administered through St. Joseph's in Peterborough.

Campbell said he had recently attempted to get the Minden Hospital heliport upgraded to a 24 hour facility, but had been stopped when approval for it was denied by the Ministry of Health.

Campbell said he had received the endorsement of the St. Joseph's Hospital Board and the District Health Council and the application for the upgrade appeared to be receiving favourable response at the Ministry level.

"Then, about two months ago, something changed in Queen's Park, and we were told night-time helicopter evacuations could be handled through the Haliburton facility," he said.

During his efforts, the site adjacent to the hospital had been staked out and individuals familiar with the requirements of night helicopter landings said the location would be suitable for such a facility.

Over the past number of years, a number of other attempts have been made to upgrade the heliport to 24 hour service, but they also have ended without success.

This newest committee is confident they will succeed. "We have been ignored for too long by the province," Lee Turner said. "Everyone is fed up. It is time something was done."

Others assisting the Turners on the committee include, Doug and Heather Johnson, Chris and Don Archer, Jessie and Don Pflug and Mary Stiver. "We'd be happy to welcome anyone else who would like to get involved," Ed Turner said. "This is a community effort."

Anyone interested in assisting can contact any of the committee members listed above. Their phone numbers are: 489-3202 (Johnson); 489-2846 (Archer); 489-2063 (Stiver); 489-3713 (Pflug); 489-2984 or 489-2888 (Turner).

Students shocked by death

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Students at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School have reacted with shock and horror at the death of 17-year-old Sandy Bannon.

Bannon died last Thursday after being shot by her father Ken Bannon at the Mill Pond Restaurant in Canarvon.

The news of Sandy's death visibly upset students and teachers at the high school on Friday, according to vice-principal Gary Brohman.

"It was a tremendous shock," Brohman said in an interview on Saturday. "It's hard for young people going through this for the first time. Many have never experienced the death of someone close to them, and it's especially difficult when it's one of their own."

Counsellors were made available to students who needed help dealing with the tragedy, and Brohman says social agencies like Kinark Child and Family Services are also involved in comforting the grief-stricken teenagers.

Although no plans have been made yet, Brohman says the high school will probably be planning a memorial service for Sandy later in the week. "We'll want to do something to pay our last respects," he said.

Sandy was in the process of completing her Ontario Academic Credit (OAC) courses.

She was "fast-tracking" her high school education by completing five years of classes in four years.

Brohman says many of students will be attending tomorrow's funeral services being held at the Zion United Church in Canarvon.

Sharing the burden

As insulated as we have become to the violence which seems to surround us on a daily basis, when it strikes as close as it did this past week in Carnarvon, it sends shock waves through the community.

No longer a faceless name in the news reports or another, quickly forgotten statistic, one of our own, a young and vital member of our community, has been cruelly ripped from our presence.

The community not only ripples with the shock of the loss of Sandy Bannon, but as has been made evident in the past few days, shares the burden of grief and pain inflicted on all those involved.

Just as surely as we share the grief, the community must also rally its resources to ensure the chances of such a tragedy happening again are eliminated.

We are indeed fortunate to live in a close-knit community. With that as our strength, there many approaches which we can use to ensure the well-being of all our members.

We all must increase our vigilance for signs of behavior that could potentially lead to such a horrendous end. But more than that, the community must have the will and resources to intervene and neutralize obvious situations before they result in tragedy.

Fighting the trend that appears to pervade all sectors of society, the community must also foster an environment where violence is not perceived to be an acceptable option as a solution to any situation.

An inquest into the events surrounding the shooting this past week would help to crystalize these short-comings and needs.

Only by taking positive action immediately can we hope to create a community where we will never again have to face the grief and pain visited on us this week.

Seaching for Canada's best palindrome

I snagged the jangling phone on the third ring and stuck it next to my good ear. The voice inside claimed to be calling from a magazine called Prairie Fire, in Winnipeg. The voice wanted to know if I would be willing to judge palindromes. I laughed harshly. "I'm sorry" I snapped, "I admit I've done a lot of damfool things in my life — I've kayaked on whitewater, accepted a blind date in Moose Jaw, eaten dinner in a place called Mom's — even delivered an after dinner speech unarmed to a room full of B.C. lawyers. I may be reckless but I'm not an out and out fool. I do not get involved in exotic animal contests!"

The voice on the phone was patient, cajoling. It explained that a palindrome is not a critter, it's a literary construction. What makes a palindrome is the fact that it reads the same no matter which end you start at.

'Mom' is a very simple palindrome. So is 'dad'. And 'Otto' and 'Anna'. Slightly more complex palindromes include 'radar' and 'level'.

Then you get to the real beauties, such as Adam's introductory come-on to Eve:

Madam, I'm Adam.

And Napoleon's purported lament as he stared out to sea from his island exile at the end of his career:

Able was I ere I saw Elba.

Not to mention what could have been the advertising slogan for the construction of the most famous canal on the planet:

A man, a plan, a canal — Panama!

Actually, the last example — 'though ingenious — is not a true palindrome. There's a dastardly dash in there that mucks up the symmetry. But you get the idea. I got the idea. I told the voice on the phone I would be delighted to

Of tinds, finds, thanks and thanks again

Editor:

I have had a dekho at three different editions of Websters and one of Oxford and can find no definition of the word tind.

However, have no fear. The intrepid word man does not let these minor hurdles get in his way!

Jamieson's Scottish Dictionary, Edinburgh 1867 states TYND (1) to kindle; (2) a spark; (3) a harrow tooth or a tine. Aha! I have it — I understand. Alles klar!

The Fenelon Falls tackler was trying to use the Redmen ball carrier to cultivate the gridiron.

Brr. It sounds like a harrowing experience.

Editor:

I would really appreciate a chance to express my feelings about the people of our community.

Last week I was unfortunate enough to have misplaced my wallet which contained a reasonable sum of money (which to me is a lot) plus most of my identification. That evening when I arrived home from work, I was informed that the Corner Store had called to say that my wallet had been found and that they had it.

Apparently someone who found it in the parking lot had brought it in and the staff had assumed I would be in to pick it up. When no one did, they called me and upon receipt, I was shocked to find it still fully intact, almost as if I'd left it at a friend's house.

I guess what I am trying to say is that to the person who found my wallet and all the staff at the Corner Store, "Thanks so much guys for being so honest and helpful." It's really great to know that there are so many honest citizens in our area and that people here really do care.

Yours appreciatively,
Nicole Plooard.

The following is an open letter to our readers from Susan Wilson, editor of This Week in the Highlands.

This has been a wonderfully warm summer in many ways. The weather, of course, was glorious. But I also enjoyed the warmth and hospitality of people all around the county who provided the information I needed for the stories I wanted to tell.

Over many cups of tea, iced and otherwise, they shared their experiences and their knowledge generously and offered insights into life in Haliburton, past and present.

I want to take this opportunity to thank everyone who was so helpful. It wouldn't be possible to do what I do without you.

No stupid questions

There is an unwritten rule in the business world that goes something like this: Managers are not hired because they have the same skills and expertise as the professionals and technicians they manage. They are hired because they know the right questions to ask the experts in order to choose an option and decide on a course of action. But that's not the rule, the "rule" is: THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS A STUPID QUESTION.

In Haliburton County too many politicians and trustees feel it is their job to do someone else's job. Too few questions are asked; too much time is spent toting a shovel that an employee is paid to tote. Which gets us around to some observations made at the last Board of Education Meeting.

How can $715,339.85 be approved as expenditures for the month of August without a series of questions about whether that figure puts the total to date over the budget for the eight month period, or under the budget, or right on the budget, and if not right on the budget, or right on the budget, and if not right on the budget then what accounts are causing the difference and why???

How can $1450.00 per month for three years be allocated to a new computer system without knowing how that affects this year's budget, next year's budget, and the one after that. Or why do computer systems only last 3 years? Is there a school system

Community Tax Watch

by Gary Kenney and John Beachli

in Ontario that has found a computer to last 10 years? Has anyone looked?

How can a special committee be instructed to look at a new expenditure like cost sharing of another employee with Kinark without giving that committee some terms of reference and specific questions to look into. Like, was there a need for this new employee BEFORE another agency made the suggestion? Are we just helping another agency fill out its budget?

How in fact can three projects be referred to special committees without some direction from the Board as a whole, from our Education managers?

Nit-picky? You bet. We in this County are blessed(?) with a top heavy administration and we are not using them to the fullest to give our managers the options necessary to stick to the budget.

Editors Note: The headline on last week's Community Tax Watch contained an incorrect date for the county-wide candidate's meeting. The meeting is October 26, 7 p.m. at Archie Stouffer Elementary School.

judge Prairie Fire's palindrome contest.

Within a few days my faithful Canada Post Mailperson was staggering up the front steps to my door, bowed nearly double under the weight of contest entries. I attempted to regale him with the lewdest palindrome I'd come across:

Eros, Sidney, my end is sore!

He was not amused. I distinctly heard a sotto voice snarl in both official languages.

There were some dandy palindromes in the package he left behind. Dave Wright sent in a taunt for the butcher of

Baghdad:

Mad dash, eh Saddam?

Myra Stilborn offered: IOU 'n' UOI

— with a footnote that read: "Palindromic licence allows grammatical freedom (me hope).

And this rather magnificent Peter/Glenda Rogers collaboration:

Draw a dahlia, my revered nude man. (named under) Every mail had award.

There, but for a slight vagueness and a pair of rogue brackets, would be my prize winner.

In any case, half the Roger's Palindromic tag team won — I awarded first prize to Peter Rogers for his instructions on the boarding of errant wilderness hunters:

Room a nimrod at a dorm in a moor.

How about you — want to try your luck at writing palindromes? Then write 'em down and send them in care of this newspaper.

But, no rush. I don't want to hurry you, so let's make a palindromic cut-off date. Let's say your palindromes have to reach me in oh, about eleven and a half years.

Or to be precise, by 20/02/2002.

Children's Concert Series ready for new season

Organizers of the Haliburton County Children's Concert Series anticipate brisk ticket sales this year. The volunteer group announced its 1991-92 program of live performances for children this week, expecting it to be even more popular than last year's highly successful season.

Realizing how difficult and expensive it can be to take young children to larger centres, the series volunteers are committed to bringing quality live entertainment to Haliburton County instead. This year's schedule will include two performances at H.H.S.S. and one at Archie Stouffer School in Minden.

"We believe that live concerts are an exciting and education experience for kids," said the group's president Barrie Wood, "without these concerts many children in Haliburton would never get a chance to see real professional performers on stage." He noted that while adults will spend large amounts to see their favourite performers in concert, their children are expected to be content with TV. The concert performances are directed at children ages 4 - 12.

On Sunday, November 17, the series kicks off at H.H.S.S. with the Canadian Content Theatre, a fast-moving trio of zany performers that has delighted young audiences across the country with their blend of song, dance, music and mime.

Deborah Dunleavy, "Queen of the Schoolyard", will entertain at Archie Stouffer School in Minden on Sunday, January 19. A school teacher turned entertainer, Dunleavy has recorded six albums of award winning songs and appears regularly on TV at home and abroad.

Back by popular demand, the Ontario Ballet Theatre returns to the Highlands with the story of Rapunzel - the beautiful maiden locked up in a tower by a wicked witch. The group kept a packed house entranced last year with a blazing combination of sound, light and professional dance. They will appear at H.H.S.S. on March 22.

Subscription ticket packages went on sale this week at the same price as last year - $40 admits a family of any size to all three concerts if the subscription is purchased this month. The price rises to $45 after October 31. Tickets are available at The Storeroom in Minden, Bins and Baskets in Haliburton or at CHACE Place centres. They are also available from the concert series volunteers, who can be reached by calling 754-4227.

The organizers point out that generous support from the Ontario Arts Council keeps the ticket price affordable and at a fraction of the cost of travelling away to attend live events.

Lifts will assist students with disabilities

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Motorized lifts are being installed at Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden to help students with physical disabilities.

At last Tuesday's board of education meeting, trustees approved the installation of the lifts at an estimated cost of $40,000.

There are currently two students at the school who use wheelchairs and, under provincial legislation, the board of education is required to provide barrier-free access.

The lifts will be installed on two sets of stairs in the hallways which run near the gymnasium. The board has investigated the possibility of installing ramps instead of the motorized lifts, but the cost of necessary renovations was estimated at $100,000 and the ramps would have taken up more space.

Dysart trustee Tim Casey said that although the cost of the lifts seems high, the equipment has to meet provincial standards in order to be licensed. "It's not something, someone can whip up in their garage," he said.

The cost of the lifts is not included in this year's budget, but business administrator Jim Bradley said because delivery takes 12 weeks, the equipment might not arrive until after the New Year and would then be included in next year's budget.

When not in use, the lifts fold out of the way and, if needed, can be removed in the future and installed in another school.

High welfare costs concern McMahon

Social services costs, budget control and the county official plan are three areas of serious concern that have convinced Lutterworth Township Deputy Reeve Jim McMahon that he should seek re-election this year. The owner, operator of a feed store in Minden announced his intention to stand for office last week.

McMahon told The Times he feels spending on social service in the county is "getting out of hand. I'm not sure what can be done," he commented, "but if some action isn't taken, the county is going to turn into a 'Regent Park'", a reference to a massive geared to income housing project in Toronto. McMahon pointed out that with three months left in the year, the county has only 16% of its welfare budget remaining. He claims that people are moving into the county to take advantage of the welfare services, and creating an increasing burden on local taxpayers.

To illustrate his contention, McMahon claims that during the month of August, when he points out the local economy should be strong and most people should be able to find work, the county's share of the social services agency budget was $144,000. "Last year, for the same month, the county's share was only $77,000. That is almost double," he declared.

He said that new programs being introduced by the province will expand the payments and eligibility criteria, increasing the burden on the ratepayers. "There are people out there who could work, but they find it easier to collect social assistance," the deputy reeve claimed.

As far as the process involved in the introduction of the county budget is concerned, McMahon feels it should be opened to include all members of the council. For the past number of years the final details of the budget were hammered out by the county management committee, which includes the ten reeves, then presented to the full council for speedy approval. This year, the deputy reeves (because of their population qualification, only seven townships have deputy reeves at the county council table) were included in the budget deliberations. However, McMahon feels the only reason that was done was to help spread the "heat" the councillors took over the 35% increase and the severe cuts to some programs, like the Chamber of Commerce grant.

He was particularly critical over the reversal, taken at the last county council meeting, to provide additional funding for the Chamber. He said the decision was a management committee one, which excluded the deputy reeves and when he asked where the $8000 was coming from, he said there was no satisfactory response. McMahon was the only one at the council table to vote against the extra funding. "Why should they even have deputy reeves at the county council if we are not allowed to know where and how taxpayers' money is being spent?" he asked.

As to the county official plan, the deputy reeve feels the whole process should be put on hold. He said the restructuring of the county should come before the designing of an official plan. He pointed out that the province seems uncertain as to how it wants to proceed with restructuring, so getting on with an official plan could be even farther off. By pulling back on the planning process for now, McMahon said the county planning department should be eliminated.

The deputy reeve also questioned the need for economic development. "How can we, up here in Haliburton County hope to attract some business out of Toronto, when most of the business moves being made are to the United States." If anything, he said the county should be working to strengthen the businesses already located here. "Let's improve on what we have," he said.

McMahon is also concerned that the province is asking the municipalities to do more and providing less in the way of supportive funding. "We are getting less and being asked to pay more." The tentative move of the court sittings to Lindsay is one example of the services leaving the county he suggested. He also proposed the county should operate its own Children's Aid Service, rather than being tied to the agency which also covers Victoria and Peterborough counties.

Turning to township matters, the issues are less clear-cut and glaring. "Generally Lutterworth Township is running smoothly," he said. Among the problems the Lutterworth council will have to deal with in the coming term are the rapidly diminishing landfill sites in the township. "I feel there is a lot of unusable land in the county which could be used for dumps," McMahon stated. However, he said the provincial government wants endless studies. "Where is common sense in all this?" he asked.

Puffer will not run

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Lutterworth Reeve Carol Puffer has announced her retirement from municipal politics after this November's elections.

Puffer, who has served as Warden of Haliburton County for the past year, says her decision was made for personal reasons.

"It's not an easy decision to have made, but I made it," Puffer told The Times last week. "At this stage a three year commitment is not in the cards. It's time to go on to other challenges."

During her term as warden, the county has faced several controversial issues. A 35 per cent increase in the county budget, the formation of a tax coalition, the decision to slash funding to the Chamber of Commerce by more than 50 per cent and criticism of the county planning department and the proposed official plan have all confronted councillors.

But Puffer says her decision not to seek re-election has nothing to do with the pressures faced as Warden.

"I'm not backing down from the challenges," she says. "Yes, there was heat this year, but there was heat last year and heat the year before. There will always be heat, it's part of the political game."

"I don't feel victimized. I've enjoyed the challenges and I feel very proud and privileged to be warden of Haliburton County. I love it and I love the county."

Puffer made her debut in local politics when she was elected as Lutterworth's deputy-reeve in the 1985 election, beating incumbent Glynne Lewis. In the 1988 election, she was acclaimed as reeve of the municipality.

"After being in the political arena for six years, it's time for new faces and new energies to tackle projects," she said.

Haliburton County has come a long way since she began serving on county council six years ago, says Puffer, and she hopes the new council continues in the same direction.

The county is tackling major issues like the Waste Management Master Plan, market value assessment, the proposed new county building and the official plan.

Puffer says the official plan should top council's list of priorities. "It's the key to retaining the county's natural environment and preserving what we have," she says.

Although she will not be in office when many of these initiatives come to fruition, Puffer says she hopes the projects which began during her term on council will lead to concrete results. The fate of these endeavors "lies in the hands of the people who are going to be elected," she says.

The past six years have seen many positive developments in the county and Puffer says she sees no signs that this trend will abate. "The 90s have become the years of change," she says, "and the pace is picking up."

And through it all, Puffer has enjoyed her time in politics. "I don't have any regrets. I met a lot of wonderful people and there were good people to work with. It's been a great experience and I've gained a lot of knowledge."

As a voter, Puffer predicts an interesting campaign and says she will be watching the race with interest.

Re-construction of the county road at Deep Bay on Gull Lake was set back last week when a large section of the newly filled in shoreline disappeared. Ton of rocks just disappeared in the lake bottom dropping the established grade by 12 feet or more. Before work was resumed, divers were sent down to determine if a rock slide or other underwater disturbance had occurred. The lakebed apparently gave way under the weight and the rock just disappeared. Construction crews spent the week attempting to replace the missing roadway.

McMahon seeking deputy's chair

The deputy reeve is also upset by the massive increase in costs for individuals wishing to have their properties sprayed for Gypsy moth control. "It is hard to justify an increase of from $6 and acre to $60," he stated.

Returning to his suggestion that the province is interfering more and in the operation of the municipalities, McMahon suggested that if they continue in this way, there will soon be little need for local councils at all.

The deputy reeve said he generally supported the positions taken by the citizens tax coalition, and he felt the taxpayers should be getting more for the money they invest in their government.

"I expect to see a lot of new faces and a lot of new ideas at the county council table in December," he said. "Hopefully, these new approaches will help to wake up Queen's Park to the fact changes are needed," he concluded.

This is McMahon's second run for the office of deputy reeve in Lutterworth Township. In the 1988 election, he was unopposed.

The following report on precipitation events was recorded at the Ministry of Environment acid rain testing station in Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada.

This report covers the period of September 15 to 21, 1991. September 16, 5 mm of rain fell with a pH level of 4.2. The airpath was Michigan, and northern Illinois.

September 18, 3 mm of rain fell, the pH level was 4.6 and the airpath was southern Ontario, southern Michigan and southern Wisconsin.

Environmental damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. Readings of 4.0 pH or less are considered dangerous. The lower the reading, the more acidic the precipitation.

Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis calls it quits

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis has announced his retirement.

A 20-year veteran of municipal politics in Haliburton County, Davis says his decision not to run in the November elections is based on a number of personal reasons.

"At my age, I feel it's time to bring up someone younger to cope with problems," said Davis, who is turning 75-years-old this year. "I can't go on forever."

For the past two decades, politics has been a major part of Davis' life and he has been a large impact on Haliburton County politics.

He served as the chairman of the Haliburton Highlands Water Levels Advisory Committee and was instrumental in bringing the water levels issue to the attention of federal and provincial ministers.

He has also spearheaded the campaign to have an 18-bed chronic care addition built at the Haliburton Hospital, squaring off with former Liberal Health Minister Elinor Caplan and making the addition a matter for debate at Queen's Park.

"I'll miss it," he said. "The things I'll miss most is serving the people of Stanhope and accepting fiscal responsibilities."

Before moving up to Haliburton County on a permanent basis, Davis was a cottager. He feels a great deal of pride for Stanhope and the sense of community demonstrated by township residents, even though there is no central village or hamlet.

"We're in good shape as a municipality," says Davis. He lists the improvements at the municipal airport, the only one in the county, and the new township office as recent accomplishments which have strengthened Stanhope.

Davis, like many other politicians who have decided not to run this year, expresses concern about the potential for a large turnover of elected officials, especially at the county level.

"I don't know if we'll get enough of the right people to run," he said. "I'm not hearing a lot of action and there are a lot of good people dropping out."

Leaving political life, Davis says he has no hard feelings and "no axe to grind."

"I am pleased with the way my life has worked out, he said."

Board will try to find space

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Haliburton County Board of Education is going to make another attempt to provide additional space for the Sir Sandford Fleming College's School of Fine Arts.

The college's Haliburton campus runs the fine arts program out of the high school for five weeks during the summer. A year ago, the school board turned down a request from the college to allow the program to run for one more week at the end of the summer.

Extending the program as the college requested would only give custodial staff at the high school one week to prepare for the start of classes in September and trustees decided that would not be enough time.

But at last week's school board meeting, trustee Nancy Donnelly proposed, on behalf of the special projects committee, that the board try and reach an agreement which would allow the School of Fine Arts to expand.

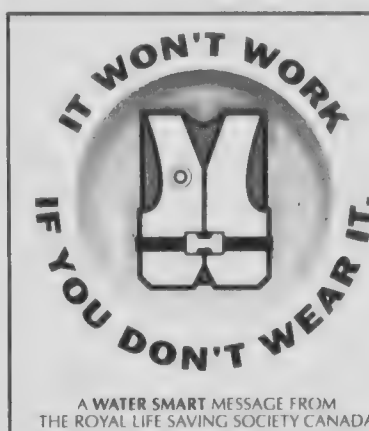

"We should look into it right away," said Donnelly. "We'd like to promote good will and it's worth trying to come to a compromise."

The trustees passed a resolution directing the administration to negotiate with the college to find a compromise solution to the need for additional space.

Len Salvatori suggested that the six-week program could be accommodated at J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School, located in Haliburton Village behind the high school.

The board offered the college space at J.D. Hodgson last year, but the offer was turned down because Barb Bolin, principal of the Haliburton campus, said she did not want to split the fine arts program between two locations. She also said the carpeted classrooms at the elementary schools were inappropriate for some of the college's "messy" courses.

Juniors take Weldon 5-1

The Redmen junior soccer team posted their first win of the season last Wednesday as they beat I.E. Weldon by a score of 5-1.

Haliburton dominated play throughout the game, demonstrating equally impressive offensive and defensive skills.

The Redmen scored two unanswered goals to opening the scoring and Weldon's lone goal came on a penalty shot just before half-time.

In the second half Redmen continued to dominate the game, scoring three more goals and denying Weldon any meaningful scoring chances.

Jamie Thiverge led the Redmen with two goals with singles netted by Lutz Haedicke, Jon Bishop and Ritchie Mills.

Coach Mark Flatman says the Haliburton team developed good offensive plays and four of the five Redmen goals resulted from team effort.

"They were well set up with strong passing from the wings to the centre," said Flatman. "It's a strategy we use and the players really develop it well."

Haliburton has now faced all three opponents in the league and have a record of one win, one tie and one loss. Flatman says, with the exception of the 5-1 win over Weldon, all the Redmen games have been close matches. "It's pretty tight," he says of the competition. "We're in there."

The juniors face LCVI in Haliburton on Wednesday following the senior game, which gets underway at 2:30 p.m.

An I.E. Weldon player from Lindsay finds himself looking skyward as a Redmen soccer player takes control of the ball and heads downfield. The junior and senior games were played last Wednesday in Haliburton. The Juniors defeated their guest by a 5-1 margin, giving the juniors a tie for second place with Lindsay Collegiate. In the senior game, Weldon reversed the figures, taking the Redmen 5-2. Both HHSS goals were scored by Will Clements.

Curlers set to begin season

Volunteers have been working hard to clean up the surface at the Minden Curling Club in order that the ice can be in before October 23.

The chilly weather of the past few weeks has caused many Minden area residents to start thinking about the winter ahead and of the new curling season.

Membership chairman Sharon Kemohan is already accepting registrations from "new and used" curlers. For those who haven't signed up yet, the annual wine and cheese registration night is slated for this Wednesday at the club.

Aware that we are still in a recession, the club decided not to increase the fees this year. You will see a slight increase though, with the GST built into the fees.

Fees this year will be $90 for one schedule or $140 for two. First-time curlers get a bit of a break with fees of $75 for one schedule and $120 for two. Students get in for the bargain-basement price of $25 for the full season.

Although scheduled curling does not begin until October 25, the ice should be in well ahead of time so members can get some practice in. New members might be interested in the Introduction to Curling session to be held on October 23 by Bob Pollard and Bill Bonner. To find out more about this, come out to the club this Wednesday for the wine and cheese social.

There is no change in this season's curling schedule. Monday nights are for the ladies to get out for some good spirited curling. Tuesday is men's night (three-man-team entries again this season). Thursday and Friday nights are for mixed curling.

For those interested in a bit more competition, the club again has six bonspiels lined up. The 'spieling season begins in Minden on November 16 with the ladies Shovel Into Winter bonspiel. Other bonspiels include the Christmas Break men's 'spiel on December 27; the Minden Winter Carnival Mixed Bonspiel starting January 31; the Rockbuster men's 'spiel starting February 14; the Straw and Stone mixed 'spiel starting March 6 and the ladies Sweep into Spring 'spiel starting April 3.

Men's Rec. Hockey underway

The Men's Recreational Hockey League season kicked off last Monday night. Once again there are six teams taking part in the league and judging by the scores in the opening round, it is going to be another exciting season of hockey.

In the first game, Sid Stamp fuels defeated Hartwick Construction 3-2. It was Home Hardware over Kountry Double D catering 5-3 and The Times taking Westside Jug City 5-4.

As usual, all games will be played on Monday night at the Minden arena, with the first contest starting at 8 p.m. The second and third games will follow at 9 p.m. and 10 p.m.

The following is the schedule for the coming season (more on page 13)

A week to think about waste

by Len Munt, Waste Management Co-ordinator

Let's all get on the waste wagon!!

I hope everyone knows that this is Waste Reduction Week throughout Ontario. This means that everyone should stop and think about how they handle their waste. There are many different ways to do this and we should probably take this opportunity to go over a few. By the way if you think of any I have forgot, please feel free to drop me a line and let me know.

The most obvious one and the hardest to actually practice is waste reduction. Now, it would certainly help if the provincial government would lay down some laws concerning needless flashy packaging or just plain over packaging. While we are waiting for the government to get aboard, there are things that you can do to help.

When was the last time you went to the supermarket and actually took the time to ask yourself the question, "Is this excess packaging really needed? and I wonder if there is another brand that does not have all this packaging?" Now there are a few options you can take at this point. One is to buy the over packaged product and under your breath say what a shame all this wasted material is. Two, buy the product with the least over packaging. The third and probably the hardest thing to do is, point these problems out to your store manager. Tell him that you would like to see a reduction in the amount of packaging used in his/her store. You might also ask if there is any possibility of getting more bulk food, there are all definite ways of helping with regards to waste reduction.

The second major way to reduce waste heading for are precious landfills is to reuse all items that can be reused. This means that thought will have to go into creative ways you can think of to reuse items you once would have discarded.

This also means using the items you have already bought, instead of throwing them away. Remember that can of paint you purchased last year and you only used half the can. Well if you don't have any more use for it, maybe your neighbour does, or maybe your dog house could use a second coat of paint (latex only), or if you have a lot of different coloured cans of paint left, mix them together and you will find you will get a brown coloured paint which is perfect for that little wood shed or outhouse out back.

Paint is not the only thing that can be re-

September 30 to October 5

WASTE REDUCTION WEEK

- Please keep thinking that you have one planet, which means we do not have an infinite amount of space. Everything we can do even as individuals, is worth doing for the BIG PICTURE. For more information contact Leonard Munt 286-1333.

used. In touring the landfills this summer I saw a lot of old furniture, which could be given to an association which deals with taking this material in and getting it to people that need it. There is a place in the village of Haliburton, called Lily Anne that will take all these items. Things like old cloths, kitchen items, furniture, appliances that work, etc. For large items please call Lily Anne ahead to make sure they have the storage space for the item, 457-3331.

Now we get to the third way to reduce and definitely the easiest for everyone to jump on the waste wagon. It is recycling, both organic wastes (wet material) and solid wastes (dry material).

Organic wastes can be recycled by means of composting. Composting can be as simple as a pile of organic matter. If given enough time will break down to produce compost. Organic matter is all the material that was once living. Examples are: vegetables, grass clippings, fruits, coffee grounds, etc. One third of all house hold garbage can be composted. This will greatly reduce the amount of garbage going to our landfills.

Some municipalities have already climbed aboard the waste wagon and have started their composting program. To bring the rest of the County up to the same place in the recycling world, I have been given the go ahead to apply for funding to bring composters to the rest of the County. To help choose the composer(s) that the County will use, on September 30, 1991 the PLC in conjunction with Waste Reduction week are bringing in Composter representatives to show their products. All who attend will be given the opportunity to help choose the proper composter for Haliburton County. If you plan to attend please phone the County building to confirm your presence. I am very hopeful that the program will be implemented in the spring of 1991. Keep your fingers crossed.

The blue box recycling has also been undertaken by a few municipalities within the County. These recycling programs are working with varied degrees of success. This type of recycling takes items such as: PET plastics, glass (coloured and clear), tin cans, and newspaper. The recycling program in the County of Haliburton does not have to stick with the norm of these four major components. There are a couple of test projects which are under way in the County. One is a fine paper recycling which is being tested in Minden. The other is cardboard recycling which is in the beginning stages and will be tested in the Village of Haliburton. So there could be a possibility of these items being amended to the overall recycling proposal. This would reduce a significant amount of waste that is entering the landfill.

If recycling of materials like the ones that have been stated along with composting and knowing that it is illegal to place household hazardous waste at a landfill site not designated for collection. I put forth this question to you, "What is left to go to a landfill site?"

Briefly, I have taken you through the three steps in reducing the amount of waste that is going into our landfills. Reducing, reuse, recycling & composting if employed by each person will make a significant dent into the amount that actually ends up in the landfill. So during this Waste Reduction Week, jump on the waste wagon and do your part in reducing waste.

If you would like more information on composting or the County of Haliburton Waste Management Master Plan please write or call, Leonard Munt, Waste Management Coordinator, Box 399, Minden, Ont. K0M 2K0, 705-286-1333.

Reduce, reuse, recycle

Following the three Rs to a cleaner planet

by Bernie Davis

Bernie Davis is currently studying Environmental Studies full time at Trent University. In addition, she is Chairperson of the Public Liaison Committee for the Haliburton County Waste Management Master Plan. She has selected a few of her thoughts regarding Waste Reduction to share with our readers.

Reduce, Reuse, Recycle - the three R's of the Turnaround Decade. Waste Reduction Week is an opportune time for all of us in Haliburton County to consider the consequences of our present behaviours on future generations and on the very survival of the planet. Although no one has "the" perfect answer, it is important that our reflection be followed by positive action.

Firstly: How can we reduce?

Response: Not without inconvenience.

We all know that it can be difficult to resist the urge to purchase items which are convenient but produce unnecessary waste and/or harmful effects on the environment. Equally as difficult for a wise consumer is the task of attempting to decipher conflicting information. But we must make these efforts and strive to reduce the amount of "instant trash" which we purchase for the sake of convenience.

Apparently consumerism and growth-economy strategies have been two driving forces of our throw-away society since the end of World War Two. When as youngsters, we Baby Boomers heard about the conservator ways of the Great Depression, as well as the recycling strategies employed during World War Two, we often looked at our parents with disdain. After all, we were growing up in a more advanced society in which technology provided us with modern conveniences. Through such things as mass-media advertising, we were conditioned to think that convenience had not price tag. Convenience does have a price tag; in many cases the price is the degradation of the biosphere.

It has been my experience that young children often are willing to put into action what we as adults talk about in theory but decide is too difficult to enact. For example, if school children are educated in waste reduction they are often willing and eager to take garbage-free lunches to school. This can be a problem if parents continue to purchase convenient lunch supplies which are over packaged. Sometimes parents discard the packaging in the garbage at home and send along the item in a reusable container. Obviously, the efforts by the child are being countered by the actions of the parent.

I have also observed that younger children often are taking more of a leadership role in environmental concerns than adolescents and/or adults. In fact, I think that it would be beneficial if adults who are in leadership roles (i.e.: parents, teachers, politicians, community leaders) would look more to the younger generation as co-learners and co-leaders. As a parent and educator, I have found that once you educate children about waste reduction, conservation preservation, etc. you should be prepared for those times when they catch you being negligent - and they always do. It is this feeling of responsibility to the young children which should inspire changes in our habits.

Secondly: How can we reuse?

Response: Once again, not without inconvenience.

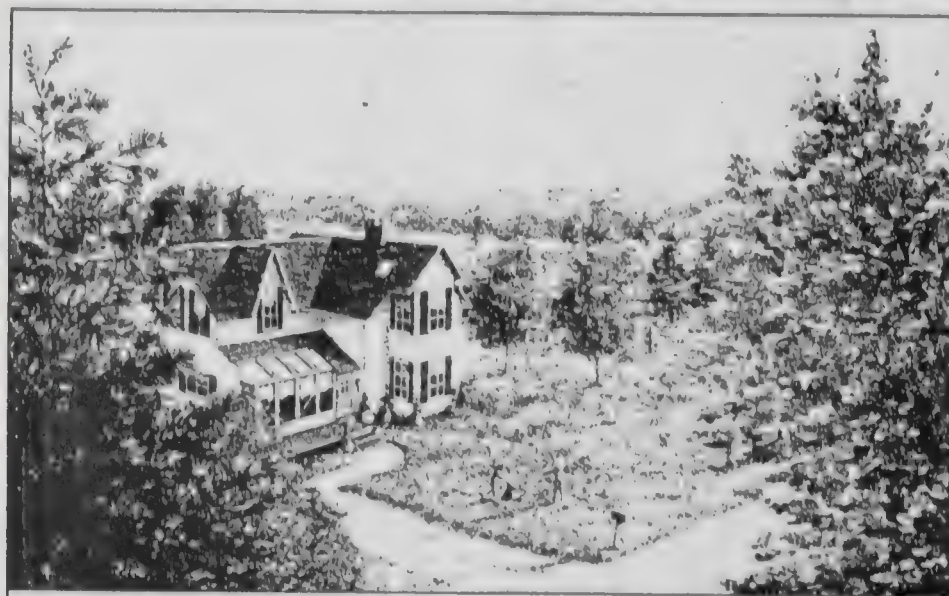

It is my impression that many of my generation have lost the art associated with reuse. My mother darned socks. I thought, "How silly". Gramma Tessa Davis made quilts from rags (not purchased material), rugs from rags and countless other items from reuseable materials. Many of the skills associated with reusing materials have not been handed down through the last generation. Hopefully, these skills will be rekindled and flourish along with new methods.

Two years ago two associates of mine at that time, Sarah Ladurantaye and Susan Carr envisioned that there was a need for more clothes redistribution for reuse. They learned that there are many "just-like new" clothes available for reuse, especially for growing children, but that many people associate these kinds of outlets only for needy families. Many of the items which Sarah and Susan collected at their depots were in excellent condition. Some still had the price tags in tact. It became apparent that many clothes could be reused better if more outlets were available similar to the Four C's in Haliburton and if the public altered its perception from "for the needy" to "for wise decision makers."

In keeping with the concept of reuse, some people have proposed that there should be a Pickers' Corner at local landfill sites. I know that I have found many items at "the dump" which were useful. At other times I have taken to the landfill items which I hoped would be useful to someone else. Certainly, garage and yard sales are helpful in diverting waste from the waste stream. Flea Markets, antique shops etc. also help. It seems to me that if our government is serious about reuse as a form of waste reduction, it should eliminate taxes from the sale of used items. For an item to be taxed every time it changes owners is contradictory to the promotion of reuse.

DON'T DESTROY YOUR ENVIRONMENT!

The challenge of the next ten years

On a regular trip to the landfill, you notice the people in the next car have much less garbage than you do. How is that possible? Their lifestyle is much the same as yours.

The people in the next car may have less garbage because they have reduced what's thrown away and reused as much as they can.

They are practising some of the good principles of waste management: reduce, reuse and recycle. There is a good reason why reduce and reuse come first. While recycling is very important and Canadians are developing good recycling practices, reducing how much we purchase in the first place will reduce the amount of garbage and put less of a strain on our landfills. As well, by reducing unnecessary purchases we will be saving our natural resources and returning to a more conservation-oriented, rather than consumption-driven, lifestyle. Whenever possible, things should be reused before they are recycled or discarded.

The Problem with Garbage

Dealing with our garbage problem is one of the major environmental challenges of the next ten years. Many regions of the country already face a critical shortage of landfill space. The media regularly carry stories of debates over where new landfill sites will be set up, which community will take another's garbage and proposals to charge homeowners if they put too much in the landfill site.

In addition, there are concerns about the environmental impacts of the way we dispose of garbage. Is groundwater becoming contaminated underneath landfill sites and if so, with what? Will it affect our health, wildlife, agriculture and perhaps our way of life?

The three Rs

Thirdly: How can we recycle?

Response: Better than we have been!

Some municipalities in Haliburton County do not have recycling yet. For some of the municipalities which have been progressive enough to establish recycling, it has been a frustrating education. Anyone who has taken their re-cyclables to the Scotchline Landfill Site, knows the frustration of seeing transfer dumpsters overflowing and contaminated (items which should not be mixed in). To cart one's recyclables back home or to leave them on the ground (to be bulldozed into the landfill) is discouraging. Apparently, I am told by Clayton Cameron, Muskoka Containerized Services (MCS) does not pick up on demand but utilizes a waiting list. Sometimes the full dumpster has waited over two weeks before being picked up. This is a matter which needs to be resolved. In addition, many people need to separate their re-cyclables better. Better public education and closer supervision at the landfill may be required. We must always remember that to recycle without first reducing and reusing is simply fooling ourselves. Recycling helps but it is expensive and not the quick fix for waste reduction.

However, there is one way which we can recycle right at home and divert approximately 30% from the solid waste stream. It is through composting which is another one of those things that many of the oldtimers of Haliburton County did (and still do). For those of you who are concerned about tax dollars and wish to match your actions with your words, I suggest that you consider a homemade composter. One does not need to obtain a subsidized digester or composter in order to compost. The prefabricated ones are a convenient way for governments to promote composting. However, tax dollars are involved. Look into homemade designs first if you are a tax watcher. Regardless, make sure that you start composting. When someone asks you how your composter is working, don't be in the embarrassing situation of having to say that you don't have one. Many people are learning by trying and some are experimenting about vermiculture which is a form of composting with special worms. Students of Archie Stouffer Elementary School started a vermiculture last spring. In addition, Mr. Sam Hambly from Camp Allsaw is a respected authority on composting with worms.

Waste reduction is one aspect of improving the environmental health of the biosphere. Prevention, through reduction of wastes at their sources, is essential. Are you doing your part? Have you reduced your contribution to the waste stream by 25%? Will you have met the goal of 50% reduction by the year 2000? Why not before?

In spite of these questions and concerns, which are not new, Canadians continue to produce a lot of garbage. In fact, we generate 1.7 kilograms of garbage per person each day. That ranks us among the most wasteful people in the world. In comparison, Sweden generates .8 kilograms per person, per day. The answer is to reduce unnecessary purchases, reuse what we have and recycle where possible. When less goes into the garbage, less goes to the dump and we all benefit.

Let's Look at Your Garbage

Take a look at what's in your garbage. Based on experience, we have a pretty good idea of what's in there. As we look through, watch how the various components of garbage can be REDUCED.

Yard Waste (10.4%) and Food Wastes (3.3%)

Both yard and food waste destined for the landfill site can be greatly reduced through composting. By using compost you return organic matter to the soil in a usable form.

Use the composter for yard wastes, such as fallen leaves, grass clippings, weeds before they seed and the remains of disease-free garden plants. As well, kitchen scraps such as fruit and vegetable peels and trimmings, egg shells and coffee Heating in the Winter. Air Conditioning in the Summer. It's all there, right under our Feet.

If you want to reduce your electric heating bill, look down at your feet. Now look a few feet further. Look at the earth itself. It could be your next source of heating and air conditioning.

Ground source heat pumps are designed to draw heat from the earth and pump it into your home. In the summer, the ground source heat pump reverses its operation. It extracts heat and humidity from your home and pumps it into the earth. The excess heat can also be used to heat domestic hot water or swimming pools and hot tubs.

This is truly the cleanest most efficient way to heat and air condition your home. And while ground source heat pumps cost more than traditional furnaces and air conditioners they soon pay for themselves with savings. That's why today's progressive home builders and renovators are specifying them for their clients.

Call us for more information about ground source heat pumps. You'll see that one of the most advanced technologies in heating and cooling is as old as the earth itself.

grounds can go in the composter. Don't use the composter for meat, bones or fatty foods such as cheese, salad dressing or leftover cooking oil, because they can attract pests. Even wood ashes from the fireplace are a good source of potash and can be added in very thin layers, but don't include charcoal or coal ashes. Your municipality will have more information on composting and how to build your own composter at reduced prices. If not, you'll be able to find one at most garden stores.

Containers/Packaging (29.6%)

Since so much of our household waste is packaging, a reduction here is vital. There are things we as individuals can do to help meet Canada's goal of 50 per cent reduction in packaging waste by the year 2000.

Buying beverages in refillable containers is important, along with buying products in large sizes rather than small, individually wrapped portions. Don't buy over-packaged products. Talk to store managers if you feel a product is over packaged, or write a letter to the manufacturer with suggestions for reduced packaging. Try to give preference to goods sold in reusable or recyclable containers and buy refills for containers you already have at home.

Non Durable Goods (34%)

Non durable goods are things such as newspapers and disposable food service items; items that have a short life. In this case, think ahead before buying. Consider long-lasting products instead of disposables. In the long-run you will save money. And you won't be alone in doing this: "Old-fashioned" cloth diapers and diaper services are becoming popular again; shoppers bring their own cloth bags to the store; workers bring their own mug to work and some have even been "sporting" fountain pens! Make sure to recycle newspapers and other paper products.

Durable Goods (22.2%)

Durable goods are things which have a long life, such as refrigerators and furniture. We send these items to landfill sites as well, and they take up a lot of room. Give old clothing, furniture and appliances to local non-profit groups for reuse or distribution to households in need of these items.

What's Being Done

Reducing the amount you throw away is easily done, especially now, with the efforts undertaken by many Canadian companies and all governments.

In 1989, governments, acting through the Canadian Council of Ministers of the Environment (CCME), pledged to work toward a 50 per cent reduction in waste disposal by the year 2000. The next year they followed up with the National Packaging Protocol, developed by governments, industry and environmental and public interest groups. The Protocol sets out action plans and establishes three reduction targets for packaging waste: 20 per cent less by the end of 1992, 35 per cent less by the end of 1996 and 50 per cent by the year 2000.

Governments are working on regulations to meet the targets, if voluntary efforts from industry and consumers don't do it first. Industry is developing new techniques to package its products that will reduce the waste during the manufacturing, distributing and retail stages and reduce the packaging you end up throwing away.

You Can Make a Difference

By thinking twice before purchasing and throwing away products we can reduce the amount of waste we produce. And what we can't reuse or donate for someone else to reuse should be composted or recycled if possible. By becoming less wasteful and more conscious of the impacts of our products on the environment, we can each make a difference.

Remember the principles of waste management: Reduce, Reuse, Recycle.

The recycled oil option

Re-refined motor oil is certified as an Environmental Choice product. You can help protect the environment in two ways: by returning used motor oil for recycling and by buying re-refined motor oil.

Cleaning dirty motor oil is much like doing your laundry. It's like washing your shirt. When your shirt gets dirty, you don't throw it out. You wash it and it comes out as good as new. So does motor oil.

In fact, motor oil comes out even better because when it is re-refined you save it from being improperly discarded. Motor oil is toxic. If you pour oil down the drain, flush it down the toilet or pour it into the sewer, it contaminates local drinking water. Water treatment facilities cannot completely remove oil from water supplies and the oil makes removal of other contaminants even more difficult. If you bury oil in the ground, it poisons the soil and eventually ends up in the water system.

By returning used oil for recycling, you save the earth and water from contamination. By buying re-refined motor oil, you ensure the process continues.

Eight brands of re-refined motor oil carry the three-doves-in-a-maple-leaf "ecologo": Canada's Choice by Breslube; Eco by Canadian Tire; Chevron by Chevron; Entech by Esso; Lubie Lube by Hub Oil; President's Choice by Loblaw's; Canadian Pride by Mohawk and: Flo-rite Super Duty by Turbo Resources. All these brands meet or exceed safety and performance standards set (more on page 19)

The consequences of a throw-away society

50% of the world's garbage

We are more of a "throwaway society" than was the case ten or twenty years ago. About 1/3 of our municipal waste is packaging. The amount of money Canadians spend each year on packaging is greater than the combined net annual income of all Canadian farmers.

North America has 8% of the world's population and produces 50% of the world's garbage.

Each person in Ontario produces about a kilogram (2.2 pounds) of garbage every day. Most of it goes into landfill sites.

The annual garbage produced by nine people when squeezed into garbage cans would be almost as high as the CN Tower (554 metres tall).

Metro Toronto generates a third of Ontario's garbage and 10% of Canada's. That's 6000 truckloads a day.

During the first four months of recycling in Toronto, people contributed over 10,600 tons of household waste for recycling.

Fifty-seven airlines operating out of Toronto's Pearson International Airport generate 26 tons of garbage a day.

Based on current, certain plans, more than half the residents of Ontario will have no place to take their waste within 5 years. Scores of existing facilities will be filled; others will close because they are dangerous.

Recycling

Paper products, including newspaper, comprise 36% of all garbage taken to the landfill site each week. Much of it is recyclable.

Cost for waste collection and disposal are sky-rocketing. In 1988 landfill fees in the Toronto area tripled. Similar increases are occurring across the province.

Recycling one tone of waste material saves three cubic yards of landfill space.

Recycling conserves natural resources, helps improve the environment and creates jobs.

The standard goal for waste reduction through recycling in Ontario is 50%, while in Europe the goal is from 60% to 80%.

In Ontario, 2.1 million households are served by Blue Box programs in 1990.

Recycling of household waste has become popular across the province. The blue "We Recycle" boxes have suddenly generated about 15,000 tons a year of used steel cans according to Dofasco.

If each Metro Toronto family recycled one newspaper per day, in one year 500,000 trees would be saved.

For each tonne of newspaper recycled, 19 trees are saved.

Ontario businesses produce more than 300,000 tonnes of paper a year.

Across Ontario, 9.4 million phone books are discarded each year. This is the equivalent of 21,150 tonnes or 380,000 trees. That's a stack of phone books almost three miles high if the average book is two inches deep.

The production of recycled paper uses 15% to 60% less water than the production of paper from virgin fibre.

Newsprint now accounts for approximately 70% of material recovered by recycling projects.

Every ton of steel cans recycled saves 1.5 tons of iron ore and 3.6 barrels of oil.

Throwing away an aluminum pop can wastes as much energy as pouring out a half-filled can of gasoline.

It takes 95% less energy to produce aluminum from recycled materials than new materials.

About half the plastic which is thrown away can be re-used, including pop bottles through to containers for cooking oil and butter.

Americans recycled a record 42.5 billion aluminum soft drink and beer cans in 1988, raising the national aluminum can recycling rate to 54.6% according to the Canadian Manufacturing Institute.

Plastics account for only 8% weight of all our waste, but about 30% by volume.

Plastic soft drink containers (PET) polyethylene terephthalate are recycled into new products such as shower stalls, auto dashboards, skis, fence posts and audio cassettes.

Scrap nylon from a Du Pont plant in Kingston, Ontario is being turned into hockey helmets, rather than being dumped as waste.

The use of recycled materials reduces the energy required for the production of steel and paper by more than half.

A television set will operate for three hours on the energy saved by recycling one aluminum can.

Making new steel products from recycled steel save up to 74% on the energy it takes to process iron ore into steel.

A 100 watt light bulb will operate for four hours on the energy saved by recycling one glass bottle.

Composting

Composting is the breakdown of organic material by soil organisms; by composting kitchen and yard waste, people can reduce household garbage by 35% and at the same time produce an excellent fertilizer conditioner for the garden.

20% of kitchen waste is unused food (not including plate scrapings). Food wastes can be composted. Excess food can be given to food banks.

Approximately 60-70% of trash collected in the fall season is yard waste. Leaf composting is a solution to collection and landfill problems.

Disposables

Canada imported 120,000 tons of hazardous waste from the U.S. last year — 80,000 tons more than we sent south.

The average household produces 35 litres of toxic waste per year.

A single litre of gasoline can make a million litres of water undrinkable.

Disposable diapers have created an enormous waste problem. Americans throw away 18 billion dirty diapers each year — enough to stretch to the moon and back 7 times.

One baby uses 7,000-10,000 disposable diapers by the time he/she is toilet trained.

Each year in Canada, about 250,000 tonnes of used disposable diapers end up in the garbage. This amounts to approximately 2.5% of Canadian's residential waste stream.

A dirty disposable plastic diaper can take hundreds of years to decompose, as compared to a cotton diaper which disintegrates in only 1 to 6 months. Cloth diapers can be reused many times and are a cost effective alternative to disposables.

Plastics do not rot, rust, dissolve, biodegrade or evaporate when exposed to the elements.

Discarded polystyrene cups, plastic utensils and straws, used once, will remain a problem for centuries.

Recycling oil

by the Canadian General Standards Board and all of them carry the ecologo. Look for the logo when you buy motor oil.

CAA has called on the federal government and the petroleum industry to have all motor oil containers carry a warning about the dangers of improper used motor oil disposal. In the meantime, you can strike a blow for a cleaner environment by recycling your used oil and buying fresh, clean re-refined motor oil.

CELEBRATING 20 YEARS OF SERVICE 1971 - 1991

A first for Minden service club

Rotary welcomes two women members

by Susan Wilson

Equal opportunity has finally come to the Minden Rotary Club.

On September 9th, Shirley Kuni and Jeanne Anthon were the first women inducted into membership in the group. They have joined thousands of women around the world who belong to the one-million-strong international service organization.

According to Minden Rotary President Ron Gambell, women have been involved in Rotary since 1985 when a group in California inducted women into their membership.

"Rotary headquarters in Chicago reacted by pulling their charter," Gambell says, "but the California group took it to the U. S. Supreme Court and won. Now there are 30,000 women in Rotary world-wide."

When Gambell became Rotary president last July, he decided it was time to open the local club's membership to women. "When Jack Brezina was president back in 1985," Gambell recalls, "he tried to get women included but there was a lot of hemming and hawing. I'm pleased to say that this time, when I proposed Shirley and Jeanne for membership, they were accepted by a unanimous vote of the ten-member board and, during the mandatory ten-day waiting period, we didn't receive any objections. So it's unanimous as far as the whole club is concerned."

Membership in Rotary is possible only by invitation and both women were surprised to be so invited. Shirley Kuni reports that she heard about it when she bumped into Gambell in a restaurant.

"My first reaction was that I would need more information on Rotary," Kuni said, "and I wanted to talk with my children about it. I was intrigued and interested because I hadn't realized how much Rotary does for people in so many countries, as well as right here at home. And I was looking for an opportunity to get involved in some kind of service work and this seemed the way to go. The reaction of my family and friends has all been very positive too."

Minden Rotary Club President, Ron Gambell, is flanked by the two newest members of the local service club. Rejean Anthon, left and Shirley Kuni joined what had been an all-male organization since its inception in 1946. Rotary Clubs around the world have been welcoming women into their ranks since 1985.

Jeanne Anthon's surprise stemmed from her concern that, given Rotary's emphasis on the business community, there were many appropriate women in the community who were not being recognized. But she was pleased to accept the invitation because of Rotary's community work.

"I've done a lot of volunteer work over the years and I wanted to continue that, now that we're here as permanent residents. Rotary's projects and fund-raising are directed towards the good of the community — they recycle the money they raise close to home. And I believe especially in their international exchange program and the scholarships."

Kuni and Anthon have had the chance to attend three meetings since joining and they have found the experience a comfortable one. "I was concerned about joining what has until now been a men's group," says Kuni, "but the meetings have been great."

Anthon likes what she has seen so far too, especially the way things are handled with humour. "These people obviously work hard and have fun doing it," she says. "I like that."

out is the reaction from some parts of the community, questioning why a woman would want to join a previously all-male group. "What I can't imagine is being in a group that consists of only one sex," says the former president of the Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Associations. "That's what I would find strange."

Rotary has already found roles for the two women within the club. Kuni has been talked into playing the piano for their sing-a-longs — "and I'm sure they'll find something else for me to do too."

Anthon has agreed to put out the newsletter on her new computer and laser printer. "But they're taking it a little easy on me for the moment, since they know I'm building a house and running for council as well."

Rotary's commitment to the involvement of women is unequivocal. During the District Convention in Sudbury earlier this month, for instance, a new club received its charter. Most of the officers and several of the members of this new group are women.

Minden's commitment, while new-found, is also a sure bet. For, while Kuni and Anthon may be the first women to join the Minden Rotary Club, they will certainly not be the last, Gambell reports. "A member asked me just the other day for an application form," he says, "because there's a woman he wants to propose for membership. So we're well on our way."

Meals program considers frozen option

by Donna Pacey
Executive Director,
Haliburton County Home
Support

Haliburton County Home Support Services (HCHSS) in conjunction with Meals on Wheels week (September 23 to September 27) was pleased to welcome to the County of Haliburton Mat Reime, President of Hospitality Associates Incorporated.

Mr. Reime represents Campbell's Foods, one of two companies who manufacture nutritionally balanced meals for Meals on Wheels. He was here to demonstrate the frozen food concept and how it could work in a rural situation.

It is hoped that the frozen food concept will enable those who require extra service to have a hot balanced meal seven days a week in all parts of the county. The frozen food concept will potentially enable HCHSS to assist clients in hard to serve areas and will make meals to be available for the client despite bad weather or the inaccessible roads that some clients live on.

Haliburton County Home Support Services and their clients have been fortunate in having dedicated people and friends who are able to supply us with the meals at low cost while keeping nutrition and taste a high priority.

Haliburton Hospital, Hyland Crest, Harvest Dining Room, Rip's Sleepy Hollow, Olde Boat House, Don and Ann's Place, Craftsmen Restaurant, Kinvale Restaurant and Dennis' Restaurant are among those who are always there to supply meals for our clients.

The volunteers are the most important part of Meals on Wheels, as they not only bring the food but smiles and greetings from a world outside. They are a dedicated group and they mean so much to those who require a nutritious, well balanced meal.

Meals on Wheels helps Haliburton County Home Support Services live up to its mandate of keeping "seniors (over 55 years of age) and handicapped (over 18 years) independent in their homes for a longer period of time." Meals on Wheels is not a charity. It is a special service that presently provides, to those who are unable to cook for themselves, a nourishing meal three times per week, for which the clients presently pay $3.50 per meal. This fee in most areas is presently passed to the meal preparation source to help cover the cost of the meal. Haliburton County Home Support Services subsidizes the program by purchasing the containers and subsidizing the mileage of our volunteers.

Haliburton County Home Support Services hopes that the frozen food concept will receive a positive response by the agencies and professionals involved with seniors and handicapped and most important of all, the residents of the County of Haliburton who can utilize this service. This service has the potential of enhancing the service we presently provide.

Haliburton County Home Support Services is in the planning process of implementing the additional service of frozen foods. We welcome your comments and suggestions.

Watching the waterfront

Each year the Ministry of Natural Resources issues hundreds of Work Permits for work on shorelands. This includes dock building, shoreline clearing, sand beaches and retaining walls. The Work Permit spells out numerous conditions detailing the work approved, dimensions of the work site, requirements for sediment control and the protection of fish habitat. In order to ensure that applicants have followed the conditions on the permit approximately 200 projects, approved in 1990 and 1991, were monitored for compliance during the summer of 1991.

Thirty-three percent of the projects which had work completed did not follow the conditions on the work permit exactly. Most of the violations, however, were small. Minor violations of Work Permit conditions are subject to charges under the Public Lands Act with maximum penalties up to $5,000.00. The Fisheries Act prohibits the harmful alteration or destruction of fisheries habitat and the deposition of a deleterious substance in waters used by fish. Most of the violations were associated with projects such as sand beaches, shoreline clearing, non-floating docks and erosion control, therefore these types of projects will be more closely monitored in the future.

Numerous reports regarding unauthorized work on shorelands are investigated each year. So far, in 1991, there have been 29 charges laid under the Public Lands Act for failure to obtain a Work Permit or the deposit of material on Crown Land. There are also a number of charges pending and before the courts under the Fisheries Act.

Interestingly, close to 40% of the permits issued in 1990 had no work completed by late summer 1991. The reasons for this are unclear though roughly 120 site inspections were possibly needless. Anyone applying for work permits should seri-

The Rotary Club of Minden has once again added to the Haliburton County Library's collection of large print books. An additional 75 books, printed in 18 point type (the size of the type used in this outline, the article at the right appears in 10 point type), were put into circulation last week. County Librarian Joel Levis, left, and club president Ron Gambell examine some of the newest books.

Road builder fined

On September 16, 1991, a Peterborough man was fined $4,500 for the illegal construction of a road in Anstruther Township. In early July, Natural Resources staff found that someone had bulldozed a road over 5 kilometres in length, through Kawartha Highlands Provincial Park and over Crown lands to gain access to a cottage on Anstruther Lake.

A Conservation Officer investigated and found violations of a number of laws administered by the Ministry of Natural Resources. At the time of the investigation, the bulldozer that had been used to carry on the work and its owner were found at the work site. Much of the new road had formerly been an old logging trail used only by snowmobiles or off road vehicles. The recent work had converted this trail to a road by pushing aside trees and vegetation and scraping the area down to bare earth. The new road was now up to 11 metres in width and could be travelled by regular vehicles.

Individuals who wish to construct roads on Crown lands are required to apply to the Ministry of Natural Resources for approval. If the Ministry allows construction, conditions are placed on the work to address environmental concerns. The work at this site had been done without approval or any forethought to environmental concerns.

The party responsible for the work appeared in court in Peterborough where his case was heard in front of his Worship Wm. Jaclyn. The individual was found guilty of violations under the Provincial Parks Act, Public Lands Act, and Forest Fires Prevention Act. In sentencing, the magistrate stated that this damaged area may not heal itself in our lifetimes.

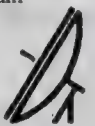

The road is now closed to vehicular traffic.

The public is encouraged to contact the Ministry of Natural Resources prior to doing any work on Crown lands.

Eighth Sled Dog Derby ready to go

The Minden Sled Dog Derby Committee has announced that, thanks to the continuing support of race sponsor Martin Pet Foods Inc. of Elmira, Ontario, the 1992 Minden Techni-cal Challenge will take place on January 11 and 12. This will be the eighth running of the world's largest limited-class speed race for sled dogs.

In addition to the purse of $25,100, Martin Pet Foods (makers of Techni-cal Dog Food) is also providing $16,000 in additional support for the event for a total of $41,100.

Race Governor Val

Lougheed expressed her appreciation of Martin's continuing support for the annual race. "Dealing with Martin Pet Foods is a real pleasure," she said, "because they are professional and have been truly supportive both of our race and of the sport of sled-dog racing in general."

The 1992 edition of the Minden Techni-cal Challenge will once again feature up to 75 teams competing in the eight and four-dog classes, plus a kid-and-mutt race after the official heats on Saturday. The Main Street Start and finish ensure that spectators have a ringside view of the exciting action provided by these outstanding athletes, both human and canine. Everyone is also welcome to visit the "pit" area throughout the weekend to talk with the mushers and look over the dogs and puppies.

The two days of racing will offer other attractions for spectators including the chance to try out the Scandinavian sport of kiksledding. "Catch the Drift", a country-rock song about the derby written and recorded by local musicians, will once again be the theme song for the entire weekend.

All these features ensure the special place of the Minden Techni-cal Challenge as a major event on the sled dog racing circuit and an exciting winter weekend for the whole family.

Fall drawdown continues

The Haliburton area reservoirs as of September 9 are at 44.2% of their full capacity in the spring. This translates to an average water level approximately 9% or about 18 centimetres lower, for lakes with a two metre available drawdown, than the average level experienced during the 1970s.

Discharges from the tributary rivers to the Kawartha Lakes have remained at or just above the minimum flow requirement. Most Kawartha Lakes are holding in a summer navigation mid-range condition with the exception of Lake Scugog which is now 4 centimetres below the chart datum. For this reason, Lake Scugog boaters are urged to contact the Trent-Severn Waterway at (705) 742-9267 if they have any concerns regarding navigation.

ously consider their intentions prior to completing a Work Permit application in order to avoid unnecessary inspections and delays for those who are committed to completing a project.

A new guide, entitled "Shoreline Conservation and Work Permits: A guide to protecting fish and wildlife habitats when designing and undertaking shoreline projects" is available, free of charge, at Ministry of Natural Resources offices. This guide describes the types of projects MNR may or may not allow, the conditions applied to work permits, and the implications of various shoreline projects on fish and wildlife habitat.

Chamber News

by Shawn Hagerman

Alive, active, filling a need

The need to keep the Chamber open was never more apparent than this September. Inquiry calls logged at the office for food and lodging, especially accommodation, exceeded the number recorded for August. A hot-lead list of people wanting accommodation is kept at the Chamber office and is available to all members in the tourist business. Financial constraints make it difficult to mail it out every week, however please drop by the office and pick up a copy. It may be a long winter.

I have had several more calls and offers to help at the Chamber office. Your support is greatly appreciated. Myself and the Board would like to thank you for your generosity. It is needed and appreciated. Someone will be contacting everybody who offered early in October and arranging what times you could donate.

Also, nominations for Highlander of the year should be in by our next board meeting in October. The annual meeting is planned for later in October, sometime between moose and deer hunting, all candidates meetings, etc. Jenny Rendall is chairman of the evening with more details to follow. Think about coming and, if possible, serving on our board or one of our committees. Over the past several weeks, it has felt like we are in the Charge of the Light Brigade. The Chamber keeps going straight ahead to fulfill its mandate to stimulate economic activity. It hasn't been easy but we keep going.

Look for the certification mark

Gas barbeques, kids' hockey helmets, Christmas tree lights and washing machines don't have much in common. But consumer experts say people shopping for these and many other items should think of safety first and look for the mark of certification organization before they buy.

"The certification mark tells consumers the product has been tested and met safety requirements of a national standard," says Marilyn Gurevsky of the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations.

"It doesn't guarantee that nothing can go wrong with the item," Gurevsky says. "But it does mean that a sample of the product has been found safe, and that the plant in which the article is made is inspected on a regular basis to ensure the standard is followed."

Safety standards are created to protect consumers from hazards. They are created by groups of volunteers who represent the interests of users, government, producers and general-interest groups.

For example, the Canadian Standards Association, one of five standard-writing organizations in the country, followed this procedure in developing standards for children's hockey helmets.

The association called in some of its 7,500 volunteers from different interest groups across the country to reach an agreement on the level of protection the helmets should offer, the materials they should be made of and a sizing system to ensure children get the right fit. Many of these standards aren't just guidelines—they're the law.

Standards dealing with many products, such as electrical appliances, are made mandatory by the provincial or federal governments. But products sometimes slip across the border without certification, so taking the time to look for the label is the shopper's only assurance goods are safe.

The most common marks of certification organizations on goods sold in Ontario are those of the Canadian Gas Association, The Canadian Standards Board, the Canadian Standards Association, the Canadian Welding Bureau, Underwriters' Laboratories of Canada and Warnock Hersey Professional Services.

To receive a brochure on national standardization activities, contact the Standards Council of Canada, 350 Sparks Street, Suite 12000, Ottawa, Ontario K1P 6N7.

Hyland Crest volunteers honoured at annual tea

Volunteerism is one of the strengths of living in a rural community. Many aspects of our lives are enriched by people who are willing to donate their time and effort to benefits others. Last Wednesday, the residents, staff and administration at Hyland Crest Senior Citizens' Home showed their appreciation for the many volunteers who contribute to community life at the home.

"There are so many areas at the home where volunteers help out," said administrator Rheta Jones in her welcoming remarks at the second annual Volunteer Appreciation Tea. "The rewards they receive may, at times, be frustrating by wanting to do more when they can only do so much. They do far more good than words can say."

This year, a new tradition began at the Tea, as volunteer service pins were handed out to those volunteers who have distinguished themselves by their service. Jones said choosing the 30 individuals who received the pins was a difficult task, given the large number of people who serve as volunteers. She said the pins will be awarded on an annual basis to honour volunteers. A special honour was bestowed on Hyland Crest resident Grace Coburn who was recognized as a Special Volunteer. Mrs. Coburn was instrumental in starting the fund-raising effort to make Hyland Crest a reality in the beginning. She then helped to organize the auxiliary and served on the executive as its first president in 1966.

Mrs. Coburn contributes her musical talent by leading the singsong, leading the singing during church services and doing special solo presentations. She will be singing a solo at the Home's 25th anniversary celebrations being held on October 25.

After the presentation of the Special Volunteer award, Mrs. Coburn cut the cake which was prepared and decorated for the Tea by Llyn Shirley, the dietary supervisor at the Home.

The 30 volunteers who received service pins were recognized for their contributions to activities like Happy Hour, visiting, bus trips, nail care and foot massage, tea parties, concerts, church services, doing errands for residents, crafts and helping with the tuck shop. The pins were presented by Jones, Minden Reeve Bern Berry, who is chairman of the committee of management, and Gary McKnight, chief executive officer of Haliburton County.

Resident Grace Coburn, who was recognized as a Special Volunteer, cuts the cake prepared by dietary supervisor Llyn Shirley for the appreciation tea.

Gary McKnight, chief executive officer of Haliburton County, presents volunteer Ellen Holden, a volunteer for 20 years, with her volunteer service pin.

Military should fight environmental battle

Five years ago, only the most astute political analyst or wild-eyed optimist could have anticipated the explosive changes within the Soviet Union and its allies. They occurred with an astonishingly small number of lives lost.

For decades, the two superpowers held the world hostage to the terror of nuclear weapons that were on such a scale of speed, power and number as to be literally beyond human control.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's lustre may be fading in his country, but he will shine brightly in history for his role in ending the Cold War.

Cynics suggest the START agreement signed in Moscow by U.S. President George Bush and Gorbachev merely eliminates aging weapons, but the treaty signals a major departure from the mindless escalation in nuclear stockpiles over the past decades.

Bush and the West proclaim the triumph of free-enterprise capitalism over communism. But the disintegration of the Soviet Empire more probably reflects the corrosive draining of personnel, resources and budgets to support the military.

Even in a wealthy country like the United States, the expenditure of a third of the federal budget for defence has been at the expense of much needed environmental and social programs. Many analysts say that forced demilitarization of a defeated Japan was a critical factor in that country's economic recovery.

Reflections

by David Suzuki

Before we trumpet the inevitability of victory over communism, we would do well to reflect on the intrinsic problems of any "big" government.

The more distanced that politicians are from the people they purport to serve, the more radically changed their priorities and preoccupations become - being far less relevant to the needs of the person on the street.

That's why leaders from Gorbachev to Prime Minister Brian Mulroney seem more successful on international issues than domestic ones, which are more difficult.

Military budgets often dwarf other government expenditures. In spite of government concern over a growing deficit, Canada's defence budget increased by $680 million in 1990, reaching a total of $12.8 billion in 1991.

As global perceptions of military threats shift, defence budgets represent a potential windfall for more pressing issues.

We have a historic opportunity to reassess the role of the military and the global threats we face. I believe we still need a strong Department of National Defence, but now the "mother of all battles" is environmental, not military.

A simple change in the title to the Department of Environmental Defence would signal a radical shift in our perceptions and priorities. War is more than a metaphor. We are in a real struggle to protect the life-support systems of the planet and their degradation is every bit as life threatening as bomb or bullet.

After the 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor, people had no choice but to make profound changes in the way they lived in order to win. Now, the daily assaults on the environment around the world add up to a far greater holocaust than the world wars.

The challenge is to make that as real and dangerous to the public as a pitched military battle.

In the eco-war, the front lines where troops are desperately needed are fires in tire dumps or PCB tanks, marine oil and chemical spills, vast tracts of unforested land, eroding farmland, wild game poaching, illegal dumping of toxic material and the "biological war" for protein being fought at the boundaries of our ocean territory. That's where we need help.

As we approach a new millenium with a different perspective on the human role in nature and a heightened concern for our planet, we must re-examine our traditional military assumptions.

U.S. cruise missile tests over Alberta, NATO jets above Labrador, U.S. submarine manoeuvres at Nanoose Bay, B.C., and biological warfare research at CFB Suffield, Alta., are anachronisms that detract from the real dangers to our health and lives.

So it is an opportune moment for the Citizen's Inquiry into Peace and Security, sponsored by peace and environmental groups, to reassess our defence priorities.

Five commissioners - from the three major political parties, Quebec and First Nations - will tour Canada for the next six weeks to hear public submissions.

For information, contact their office at 555 Bloor St., W., Suite 5, Toronto, Ontario M5S 1Y6 (phone 416-588-5555).

They need your support and participation to define the enemy and focus our military priorities.

GST will pay for national debt, not new programs

You've told us not to use the GST to pay for new spending and we've listened. As part of our plan for economic recovery, the money we get from the GST will only be used to bring the public debt under control.

Bringing the debt under control is one of the most important things we can do to ensure a better future for Canadians. That is why we've introduced a new law that says GST proceeds have to be paid into a Debt Servicing and Reduction Account. This new account will be an important weapon in our continuing battle with the deficit.

The money we get from selling Crown corporations will also go into this account and individual Canadians will be able to make personal contributions to the fund. This account may only be used to pay interest on the debt, and as revenues grow over time, to pay down the net debt. This is clearly set out in the law which is now before Parliament. The account will be audited annually by the Auditor General.

from the office of Bill Scott, MP

Many Canadians acknowledged the need for the GST, but were worried that the money would be used to pay for new programs and services. We are determined to stop this from happening.

To reinforce this initiative, we will soon table a tough law to control spending.

For a five-year period, there will be a limit on how much Ottawa can spend on programs. Borrowing or increases in taxes, including the GST, would not be allowed to fund excess spending. Instead, cuts would have to be made to stay within the spending ceiling.

Once approved by Parliament, the Debt Servicing and Reduction Account and the Spending Control Act will be effective for the 1991-92 fiscal year, which began on April 1, 1991.

The February 1991 budget contained spending cuts of $15 billion over the next five years. Transfer payments to provinces are being restrained. Public service raises are being held down, and the number of managers is being streamlined. Grants to business are being cut. Operating budgets are being constrained.

We plan to hold the deficit at $30.5 billion this year, and to cut it to $24 billion next year, the lowest level in a decade. Our plan calls for the deficit to decline rapidly, year by year, to reach $6.5 billion by 1995.

These are challenging measures. They are matched by the toughness of the fiscal challenge facing Canada. They reflect our commitment to win the battle against the deficit and the debt. And they reflect the views of the many Canadians who have told us to lead the way and take the decisive action necessary.

Remember to attend your General Meeting on October 2.

For Your Service

by Georgina Deeks, Legion Branch 636, Minden

We now have our new roof furnace in so we should be nice and warm for the winter months.

In case you haven't heard, they are also working on our patio at the entrance.

We were sorry to hear of the passing of Comrade Peter Deller, our membership chairman. Our sympathy goes out to the family.

District F Drumhead service was held September 22 in Haliburton Branch 129. There was a total of 208 flags in the parade.

The colours flying over

Head Lake where the ceremony was held, was a sight to behold. After the ceremony, a delicious roast beef dinner was served by Branch 129. A very good day all around.

Your bulletin is out now comrades. (Blue Beret). Please pick one up, they are in the lobby at the legion.

Mark this one on your calendar, Brechin Parade and Remembrance service, October 20. Fall-in 1 p.m. Legion dress if possible. Let's have a good turnout from Branch 636.

That's it for now. See you at the general meeting.

Hi Kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list. It's as easy as that.

Residents enjoy fall colours from the Dorset tower

Sunday, September 15 chapel service was taken by Rev. John Burgess with Alice Jones playing the organ. We appreciate both the service and the music.

Monday night Tom McAllister came to show the movies. He showed in two parts "The Horse with the Flying Tail". This show is really good. We have seen it three times and we all enjoy it so much, we never tire of seeing it. Thanks, Tom.

Tuesday morning chapel service was conducted by Evelyn Coleman with Doris Robertson playing the organ. We enjoyed the service very much and thank Evelyn for coming to our aid.

We were expecting to have an O.P.P. Canine demonstration on Tuesday afternoon, but the dog was needed for police work, so we had a card game instead.

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

Wednesday, Doris Robertson took us for a bus ride to see the coloured leaves. We went to the tower above Dorset. It was a nice trip, but cloudy. We enjoyed just getting out for a change. Of course, we stopped at Kawartha Dairy on our way home. We thank Dorothy Hunter and Tanya Little who kindly went along to help care for us, as well as Doris and Linda.

Dianna Morris read to us in the evening and Pastor Murray held a service in the main lounge that evening.

On our bus trip, Linda Fry announced that at a meeting of the executive that morning, names were decided on for the corridors and lounges of Hyland crest. A name was chosen for our bus, too, "The Highland Rover". The lounges and halls will soon have their names up so everyone will know where they are.

Congratulations to two more ladies and one gentleman on having birthdays this week; Ann Collison September 20, Cora Upton September 22 and Garnet Ash, September 14. We hope you had happy birthdays.

September 19 the Kinmount Legion Ladies provided our Thursday tea party. The delicious tea, for which we thank Gladys Silver, Mary Hartin and Hilary Kelly, was appreciated very much. The auditorium looked very nice with tea set up on our new tables, donated by the Hyland Crest Auxiliary.

In the evening, we had bingo called by Nancy Briggs and Daisy Downs, who we thank sincerely.

Friday was Happy Hour with entertainment by Charley Hadley, Lloyd Madill and Doris Robertson. Don and Ellen Holden, Mary Guillemine and Dorothy Milne volunteered to tend to the needs of the residents and their friends. Thanks to the entertainers and volunteers.

An Open Letter to All Canadians.

Tuesday, September 24, 1991

My fellow Canadians:

Today in the House of Commons, the Prime Minister is putting forward proposals to renew the Canadian federation.

The proposals are not fixed or final. They are a basis for discussion. Canadians are encouraged to debate them vigorously and openly and suggest how they can be improved so that every Canadian can feel welcome, understood and respected in our own land.

A Special Joint Committee of the House of Commons and Senate will seek the views of Canadians on these proposals. Please participate actively in the Committee's work. It's an opportunity to forge the kind of Canada that can best serve the interests of Canadians now and in the future.

The process of renewing the Canadian partnership will not be easy. Canada was born and built because previous generations understood that unity is the key to prosperity and that the keys to unity are tolerance, compromise and goodwill.

In difficult times, these characteristics are often in short supply but that is when we need them most.

Canadians have the opportunity as never before to create a Canada in which all Canadians can feel at home. Together, we have the opportunity to strengthen this country to make it more prosperous and more responsive to the aspirations of all its people.

I urge you to take part in renewing Canada. It's our country that's at stake.

The Right Honourable Joe Clark,
President of the Privy Council and Minister Responsible for Constitutional Affairs.

The matriarch, 95 years young, Mary Windover and 50 family members were in attendance on this sun-filled Labour Day weekend. Relatives travelled from distant points such as Calgary, Oshawa, Whitby, Toronto and Oakville to attend.
